

Kings quadrangle and vicinity while the Wisconsin ice was building the Bloomington Moraine and Marenge Ridge after its recession from the Belvidere area. The stippled areas represent valley trains and the direction of flow is indicated by arrows. The outwash from the north is chiefly Late Wisconsin in age, the remainder being chiefly Early Wisconsin. The margin of the ice-sheet is cross hatched, as near Harvard and Marenge.