OIL AND GAS INDUSTRY IN ILLINOIS

JANUARY 1, 1955

by

A. H. Bell, Virginia Kline, and W. F. Meents

ABSTRACT

A map of the oil and gas industry in Illinois shows fields, pipelines, refineries, plants, and underground storage. A list of pools and a resume of Survey services pertaining to the oil and gas industry are included.

The accompanying map shows the oil and gas fields, principal pipelines carrying crude oil, natural gas, and refined products, refineries, plants producing natural gasoline and liquefied petroleum gas, and locations of underground storage of natural gas and liquefied petroleum gas. An alphabetical list of oil and gas pools is given below.

Illinois leads the 12 states lying wholly east of the Mississippi River that reported oil production in 1954. Illinois produced 42 percent of the total for these states as compared with 21 percent for Mississippi, which ranked second.

Because Illinois wells are located in a populous region of high industrial and agricultural productivity, there has generally been a market for Illinois' total production at any one time. Transportation facilities by pipeline, railroad, and water are excellent.

Illinois has produced a total of 1 3/4 billion barrels of oil to the end of 1954, and at the end of the year was producing at a daily rate of 200,000 barrels. With the growth of secondary recovery operations - mainly water flooding - the discovery of new fields, extensions, and new pays, and the increasing use of new production techniques - such as hydraulic fracture treatment - Illinois may well produce in the future as much oil as it has in the past, or an ultimate total of 3 3/4 billion barrels.

The collection and dissemination of geological information pertaining to oil and gas are major functions of the Illinois State Geological Survey. Services of the Survey pertaining to oil and gas include publication of a series of blue-line oil and gas development maps in square units of 9 townships each on a scale of 2 inches = 1 mile. These show the locations of oil and gas wells and dry holes and depths for wildcat dry holes and for a few producing wells. They are revised quarterly on January 1, April 1, July 1, and October 1. They are available for most of south-central Illinois between Decatur and Harrisburg and between the Indiana border and Edwardsville.

Monthly oil and gas drilling reports giving summary tables of drilling by counties, and detailed data on new locations, completed wells (both producers and dry holes), discoveries of new pools, extensions, and new pays are issued about the 12th of each month. These may be purchased as individual issues or may be subscribed for by the calendar year.

Annual reports on oil and gas developments prepared by the Survey are published by the American Institute of Mining, Metallurgical and Petroleum Engineers in yearly volumes on "Statistics of Oil and Gas Development and Production" and in previous years have been issued as reprints by the Survey. Beginning with 1954, separate, more extensive reports on oil and gas development and production in Illinois will be issued by the Survey.

Annual reports on secondary recovery operations are issued by the Survey in cooperation with the Illinois Secondary Recovery and Pressure Maintenance Study Committee of the Interstate Oil Compact Commission.

In addition to publications concerning oil and gas, the Survey has extensive files of well logs, samples, and cores, which are available for reference. Well samples in the files may be studied in the Survey's subsurface laboratory. Out-of-print publications may be consulted at the Survey library and in other libraries; some are available for lending for limited periods. Members of the staff are glad to confer with visitors on questions concerning geologic data.

Illinois' first producing oil well was drilled in 1886 and since then the State has produced 1 billion 756 million barrels of oil. Peak production in 1940 was 147 million barrels. Production is again climbing with secondary recovery bringing the revival of older pools. Illinois is now the leading oil producing state east of the Mississippi River, with an average daily production of more than 200 thousand barrels.
